The goal of the presented diploma thesis was to identify effect of cryptocurrencies on the global economy. The defined main goal of the diploma thesis can be considered as partially fulfilled.

This is a new topic and therefore it is not yet possible to identify all effects. I positively appreciate the fact that the student tried at least.

The theoretical part is clearly elaborated, the chapters logically follow one another. The theoretical part of the work is an excellent starting point for the practical part. The ratio of the practical and theoretical part of the work is absolutely optimal. The processing of the practical part of the work is rather superficial, it does not go into the depth of the given issue.

This work meets the requirements for a diploma thesis, and therefore I recommend it for defence.
